RESOURCE LIST

The resources listed below are offered as a starting point to locate organizations that may help an individual dealing with a hoarding situation. Inclusion on this resource list does not mean that the Hoarding Task Force of Greater Dallas endorses any organization, business or service. Further, the Hoarding Task Force of Greater Dallas cannot and does not make any guarantees whatsoever as to the quality of services or products provided by any organization, business or service listed here.

The information provided here is for informational purposes only and is not intended as a substitute for the user's own research and investigation of any of the organizations, businesses or services listed.

Should you have a complaint regarding discrimination or mistreatment involving any organization, business or service listed here, you may contact the Hoarding Task Force of Greater Dallas. What is hoarding? Do I have a hoarding problem?

DSM-5 characterizes Hoarding Disorder as “persistent difficulty discarding or parting with possessions, regardless of their actual value.” Sound familiar? The afflicted insist on “a perceived need to save the items” and experience “distress associated with discarding them.” The result is an “accumulation of possessions that congest and clutter active living areas and substantially compromise their intended use.”
